

p 382 Supporting patients that have ingested toxins affecting the gastrointestinal and hepatobiliary systems

p 405 Practical aspects of metabolic disease testing on farm and interpretation of results

p 421 Considering changes to commonly accepted procedures to improve animal welfare

IN THIS ISSUE

- 371 Dealing with feline infectious peritonitis
Laura Honey

CLINICAL PRACTICE

Companion animals

- 372 Update on feline infectious peritonitis
Emi Barker, Séverine Tasker
- 382 Supporting the intoxicated patient: toxicants affecting the gastrointestinal and hepatobiliary systems
Simon Cook, Tom Greensmith

Avian

- 396 Guide to using antibiotics in pet birds
Vicki Baldrey

Farm animals

- 405 Metabolic disease testing on farms: epidemiological principles
Sabine Mann, Jessica McArt, Ángel Abuelo

PRACTICE MANAGEMENT

Practice improvement

- 415 The appropriate extent of digitalisation: understanding telemedicine and virtual care
Thom Jenkins

People

- 418 How to thrive at work: tips for improving personal and team wellbeing
Carolyne Crowe

OPINION

Everyday ethics

- 421 Administering an analgesic during electroejaculation procedures in rams
- 423 Comments on: Reporting a case of suspected dog fighting

Off the record

- 424 To dig or not to dig?

MyVetFuture

Succeed at every stage of your career

BVA
British Veterinary Association

BMJ

Learn more today myvetfuture.com